PENTECOST SUNDAY, June 8, 2025

Today we celebrate the great feast of Pentecost, often referred to as the birthday of the Church. At today's feast we celebrate a God who keeps His word, a God who is faithful to us, in spite of our infidelities: Jesus had promised the apostles that they would be baptized with the Holy Spirit and today we celebrate the fulfilment of this promise as we recount how 'they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance' (Acts 2:4).

Yet, it would be wrong to think that today's feast marks the first action of the Holy Spirit in the world or is even the first time that Jesus has imparted the Holy Spirit on His apostles. If we have any doubt about this, we are reminded of it in today's Gospel reading, which is set chronologically before the first reading from Acts. In today's Gospel, Jesus comes to the disciples whilst they sit, cowering in fear, in a room in Jerusalem, and He breathes on them, saying: 'Receive the Holy Spirit. For those whose sins you forgive, they are forgiven; for those whose sins you retain, they are retained' (John 20:22-23).

Two different events, then, and two different effects of the Spirit. In the Gospel account the chief characteristic of the Spirit is the forgiveness of sins and this link is brought out each time those life-giving words of absolution are uttered over us in the Sacrament of Confession: 'God the Father of mercies, through the death and resurrection of His Son has reconciled the world to Himself and then sent the Holy Spirit among us for the forgiveness of sins.'

What though is the chief characteristic of today's Feast, where unusually the events of the first reading are our primary focus rather than those of the Gospel? That the Church directs our focus to the events of Pentecost suggests there must be a more profound reality being expressed than the simple gift of speaking many different languages: for wonderful as that may be, it pales next to the forgiveness of sins.

The events of today's gospel and the reading from Acts point us towards the fuller meaning of the event of Pentecost; an event that we cannot understand the true significance of, without turning our minds to the Tower of Babel and the multiplication of languages. Up until this point, the 'whole world spoke the same language', the initial event of the Fall had not yet shattered the element of unity which a common language preserved between all mankind. However, the people who settled in Babel grew proud and sought to 'make a name for [themselves]' by building a tower which would reach heaven (Genesis 11:4). God, however, saw where the arc of their actions was leading and 'confused their language' so that they could no longer understand one another (Genesis 11:7). The result is a multiplication of languages, but the real loss is the capacity for understanding that previously existed. Added on to the effects of the Fall – where man could no longer relate properly to God, to himself, to creation, and where male and female were no longer in harmony – people now became separated by language and a crucial component of understanding and trust was lost.

Seen in this context the true significance of Pentecost starts to become apparent. Through the gift of the Holy Spirit the Apostles are able to preach the word in the native language of all the different peoples gathered before them. The multiplication of languages proves no obstacle to the preaching of Good News, but nor does everybody suddenly speak the same language again.

In this we are pointed to a lesson which is also implicit in the Gospel where the Risen Lord appears amongst the disciples 'and showed them His hands and side' (John 20:20) and where it is the marks of His crucifixion that seem to be the means of their recognition of Him. The lesson is that Christ does not undo history, rather He transforms it. We still have to live with the effects of Original Sin, but no longer are we held captive by them. Christ respects our freely chosen actions . . . and by implication their effects . . . but, in Him, we are granted a new freedom, we are no longer enslaved to sin. He calls us to become members of His Body, the Church, and we are called into a union far more profound than a single spoken tongue. We are united by the Word made flesh. His Body and Blood, shed for us, become the visible sign of our communion and our common language.

All this is brought out in today's second reading from St Paul, where we see how unity does not equal homogeneity, instead he points to how united in the Spirit, we are united by something greater and more powerful than ourselves, and how our differences can now be put to work for the common good of the Body of Christ, the Church.

St. Anthony of Padua (Feast Day: June 13) Patron of Lost things

Saint Anthony was born into a wealthy family in Lisbon, Portugal. At fifteen, he joined the Abbey of Santa Cruz to study theology. Later, he left to join the Franciscan Order. During a visit by the Dominican friars, there was confusion over who would deliver the homily. Anthony was asked to speak and delivered a beautiful homily that impressed both the Franciscans and Dominicans, gaining a reputation for his teaching. In another instance, when heretics refused to listen to him, Anthony preached to the fish at a riverbank, which led the people to realize they should listen to him too. He died at thirty-six and was canonized less than a year later by Pope Gregory IX.

Stewardship Advocate

"The Advocate, the Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you everything and remind you of all that I told you." (JOHN 14:26) The materialism of our society lures us to concentrate more on what we want than on what God wants for us. The relativism of our world tells us that we should be tolerant of all things, that there is no absolute truth. Pray to the Holy Spirit to transform our lives and to guide our thoughts, words and actions. What Stewards put in their mind, heart, and soul affects actions. Put good things in and good things will come out.

One of Pope Leo XIV's Prayer Intentions PRAYER FOR WORKING CONDITIONS

Jesus, you knew work in this world, and You understand its hardships and joys... Hear our prayer today. Working is a human trait... Work is sacred... The beauty of the earth and the dignity of work were meant to be united... The earth becomes beautiful when man works... Lord, You see that we believe this with conviction, but we desire even more for it to become a reality among us. We are saddened when people can't find work and lack the dignity of bringing bread to their home. Give us the light of your Spirit, open our hearts, do not let indifference overcome us. Help us recover the gift of universal brotherhood. We ask for a heart as big as Jesus's so we can embrace the call to work to give dignity to people and families. Amen.

OFFERING PRAYER

Good Father, I know you are with me. Here I am on this new day. Place my heart once more next to the Heart of your Son Jesus, who is giving himself for me and who comes to me in the Eucharist. May your Holy Spirit make me his friend and apostle, available for his mission of compassion. I place in your hands my joys and hopes, my works and sufferings, everything that I am and have, in communion with my brothers and sisters of this Worldwide Prayer Network. With Mary, I offer you my day for the mission of the Church and for the prayer intentions of the Pope and my Bishop for this month.. Amen.

Pentecost Sunday ©JPPC

Pentecost Sunday — June 8, 2025

FIRST READING:

Acts 2:1-11

When the time for Pentecost was fulfilled, they were all in one place together. And suddenly there came from the sky a noise like a strong driving wind, and it filled the entire house in which they were. Then there appeared to them tongues as of fire, which parted and came to rest on each one of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in different tongues, as the Spirit enabled them to proclaim.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM: Lord, send out your Spirit, and renew the face of the earth. Psalms 104:1, 24, 29-30, 31, 34

SECOND READING:

1 Corinthians 12:3b-7, 12-13

Brothers and sisters: No one can say, "Jesus is Lord," except by the Holy Spirit. There are different kinds of spiritual gifts but the same Spirit; there are different forms of service but the same Lord; there are different workings but the same God who produces all of them in everyone. To each individual the manifestation of the Spirit is given for some benefit.

As a body is one though it has many parts, and all the parts of the body, though many, are one body, so also Christ. For in one Spirit we were all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, slaves or free persons, and we were all given to drink of one Spirit.

GOSPEL:

Jn 20: 19-23

On the evening of that first day of the week, when the doors were locked, where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in their midst and said to them, "Peace be with you." When he had said this, he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples rejoiced when they saw the Lord. Jesus said to them again, "Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you." And when he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit. Whose sins you forgive are forgiven them, and whose sins you retain are retained."

CREED: I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth, of all things visible and invisible. I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God from God, Light from Light, true God from true God, begotten, not made, consubstantial with the Father, through him all things were made. For us men and for our salvation, he came down from heaven.

At the words that follow, up to and including "and became man", all bow.

And by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and became man.

For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate, he suffered death and was buried, and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures. He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father. He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead and his kingdom will have no end. I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, who with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified, who has spoken through the prophets. I believe in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church. I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come. Amen.
